

Energy Efficiency Business Rebates

Offers rebates to help business customers offset the cost of installing energy-efficient equipment.

What are Energy Efficiency Business Rebates?

Energy Efficiency Business Rebates (EEBR) offer rebates to eligible business customers for installing energy-efficient lighting, refrigeration, food service, natural gas and other technologies. Installing energy-efficient equipment in a business can help reduce energy consumption and operating expenses, which leads to greater profitability, productivity and efficiency. Rebates are designed to encourage such installations by helping to offset the cost of installing energy efficient equipment.

Who is eligible?

EEBR is open to non-residential customers with existing buildings that have an electric or natural gas account with SDG&E®. Non-residential customers include commercial, industrial and agricultural customers.

What are the project requirements?

The equipment must meet the requirements listed in the Rebate Application and the Product Catalog. All equipment must be new. Used or rebuilt equipment is not eligible for a rebate. If a customer has received an incentive or service from another state or local Public Goods Charge program, they are ineligible to receive a rebate for the same measure(s).

Are there any limitations?

Fuel switching and new construction do not qualify. The total rebate limit is $350,000 per service account, per fuel, per calendar year. Customers with multiple service accounts or chain account customers may receive rebates for multiple projects; provided that each individual service account or site limit of $350,000 is not exceeded. There is no limit on the number of service accounts that may participate.

How do I apply?

The Rebate Application forms and the Product Catalog can be found at sdge.com/businessrebates.
